

A Reunion in the Rockies

Reunions can be fun, but organizing one usually requires a lot of time and effort. To make it easier to gather friends and family together, Canadian Rocky Mountain Resorts has introduced the Reunion Program in three of its properties: Buffalo Mountain Lodge in Banff, AB, Emerald Lake Lodge in Yoho National Park near Field, BC, and Deer Lodge in Lake Louise, AB. The program offers a free room for the organizer when 20 rooms are booked (per night), private dining and meeting rooms, and numerous seasonal activities, such as hiking, canoeing, and skiing. For more details, visit www.crrmr.com or call 1-800-661-1367.

Want to Avoid an Airport Nightmare? Here's How You Can

Air Canada wants to help you avoid the stress of flight delays and cancellations beyond your control. Air Canada recently introduced its new program, On My Way, which costs $25 or $30 per flight, depending on the length of the flight. The program guarantees you'll get a specialized customer service agent to help you if you're on a delayed flight on Air Canada or on another airline. If you're delayed overnight, they'll even pay for a hotel, transportation, and meals, if necessary. For the full terms and conditions of the program, visit www.aircanada.com/en/travelinfo/travelers/onmyway.html.

Ontario's Doors Are Wide Open

Discover Ontario's heritage as Doors Open Ontario welcomes visitors to landmark buildings and sites across the province—for free. Visit historical sites such as the Niagara Apothecary (October 18-19), built in the 1860s, or visit Willistead Manor in Windsor, ON (September 28), the exquisite Edwardian mansion built in 1906 for Edward Chandler Walker, the son of famed Canadian Club distiller Hiram Walker.

Doors Open Ontario kicked off its 2008 season this past April and continues until the end of October. For a complete list of scheduled events, visit www.doorsopenontario.on.ca or call 1-800-ONTARIO for a printed guide.

Fulford Place in Brockville, ON.

My Yurt or Yours?

If you're looking for an unusual place to lay your head this summer, why not opt for a yurt? But you don't have to travel to Mongolia to sleep in one of these round tents used by nomads in Central Asia. To experience what it's like to sleep in a yurt, just head to Pender Harbour Resort along British Columbia's Sunshine Coast. The yurts featured at the resort are replicas of Mongolian models dating back 2,000 years, but they come equipped with modern amenities, such as a comfortable bed, dining room, and a skylight to watch the stars as you fall asleep. For more information, visit www.penderharbourresort.com or call 1-877-883-2424.

